

DOWNSTREAM: a public art project

Our connection to all things is illustrated by the nature of water and its travels through land, air and organisms. What goes on the ground ends up in the Sound and our part in protecting it is needed. Downstream, a public art exhibit, focuses attention on the role each of us has in impacting and improving the health of the Long Island Sound and our own Connecticut Harbors. Downstream invites you to actively learn about your environment and look for ways to become environmental stewards in our own backyards.

this is a project of
www.koberfish.org
in partnership with
rePublicArt.org

Take me to the River, Drop me in the Water